Introduction to Ancestry.com

Saturday, March 12, 2016

2:30 – 4:30 pm

Downtown Library

Ancestry.com, one of the largest on-line databases for genealogical research, is available free at the Juneau Public Libraries. Learn how to navigate the site, effectively search for your ancestors, and access a variety of helpful tools. There will be time to explore your own family history. Bring a laptop if you have one. Additional laptops will be available for use during the workshop.

Instructor: Teresa Campbell, Gastineau Genealogical Society. A former teacher and resource consultant, Teresa has been researching families for over 30 years. She is a member of the National Genealogical Society, the Association of Professional Genealogists, and several local societies, and is always on the lookout for interesting records and better research strategies.

For more information call 500-7476.

Sponsored by the Gastineau Genealogical Society and the Juneau Public Libraries.
